Using This Program at Home

Many ATARI® Learning Systems program manuals were originally designed for use by teachers in the classroom. The programs themselves, however, are no less engaging and instructive for “independent learners”—children, students, and adults—working at home.

Every manual includes a “Getting Started” section that explains how to load the program into your computer system quickly and easily. Since many basic prompts and other instructions are displayed right on your screen, that’s all you’ll need to begin learning and exploring with most ATARI Learning Systems programs. But whether you’re a parent, a tutor, or a home learner teaching yourself, it’s a good idea to look through the teaching materials in your manual. You’re likely to find important details on using the program, valuable supplementary information on its subject matter, and some creative ideas for getting the most educational and entertainment value out of your ATARI Learning Systems program.

Introduction

Everyone needs to know how to spell, and the sooner children learn how to do so, the better.

Of all the methods used to teach spelling, spelling in context is one of the most useful. Learning to spell a word in the context of a sentence helps to provide meaning to a word, thus increasing the chances of its being remembered.

Using a computer to do spelling in context has many advantages. The computer can correct spelling errors immediately and help learners avoid repeating their mistakes. The computer can also remember which words a learner misspells and, during the regular lesson, provide a review lesson of misspelled words. Moreover, the computer can prompt a learner to correct a misspelled word, doing so patiently until he or she has found the correct spelling.

Words are presented in random order; no two learners will receive the same order. Thus, learners are encouraged to avoid rote study.

In this program, each word is flashed briefly on the screen, for a period of time chosen by the learner. Then the word disappears and a sentence is displayed. The sentence has a blank where the letters of the word will appear as the learner types them.

Getting Started

Follow these steps to load the Spelling in Context program into your ATARI® computer system:

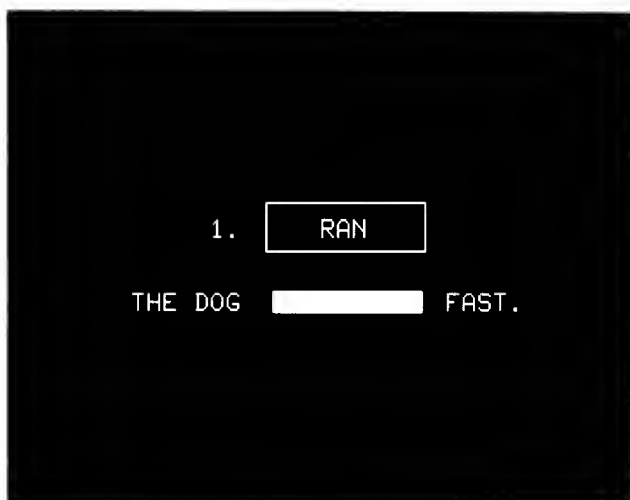

1. With your computer turned off, turn on your television set or monitor and disk drive. Wait for the busy light on the disk drive to go out.
2. If your computer is not equipped with built-in ATARI BASIC, insert an ATARI BASIC cartridge in the cartridge slot (the left cartridge slot on the ATARI 800® computer).
3. Insert the Spelling in Context diskette in your disk drive (disk drive 1, if you have more than one drive) and close the disk drive door or latch.
4. Turn on your computer. As your disk drive goes to work, you'll hear a beeping sound. After a few moments, the Spelling in Context title screen will appear.

Press the SELECT key on your computer console to move the arrow on the title screen to the group of lessons you want to work with, then press RETURN. To begin learning with Spelling in Context, simply follow the instructions that appear on the screen. And remember—after entering your answers to the questions asked by Spelling in Context, you must almost always press RETURN.

Getting Started

The user types the word and presses the RETURN key. If the word is correct, a positive message is given. If the word is misspelled, one of several corrective messages, like "TRY AGAIN," is given. If a second error is made on the same word, the correct spelling of the word is given. The user is required to spell the word correctly before the next word is presented.

Each misspelled word is recorded by the computer. If the user scores less than 90 percent correct on the lesson, the misspelled words are reviewed at the end of the regular lesson. In this way, the user is given several chances to practice spelling words correctly.

Choosing Spelling Words

The words chosen for this program were selected from a variety of sources, which are listed on page 28. Some words are capitalized because of their context in the program.

Words were selected on the basis of their being those most commonly used at each grade level. Spelling demons for each grade level were also included in various lessons.

There were several stages in the development of the final lists of words at each grade level. First, a basic list of words was developed using two spelling textbook series. The lists were put into a computer and systematically compared to the words on the other lists. Word frequencies were also examined.

The resulting lists of words, at each grade level, are longer than the lists of most individual spelling texts, since many sources have been combined to provide the widest possible coverage. The number of words, of programs, and of lessons at each level are shown on page 9 of this manual.

Hints for the Effective Teaching of Spelling*

Using a list of common words as a basis for a program is preferred over local or specialized lists. Words included in this program constitute a general list. The number of new and recent words is not as great as many people conjecture. Using a standard list is still the best means of meeting common student needs.

Students are expected to be able to read the words they are being asked to spell, and also, in most cases, to know their meaning. Nonetheless, it is well to emphasize the meaning of the word as implied in context, or, if needed, when words are presented separately.

Initial presentation of spelling words to be learned is best done in list form. Spelling words in context can encourage students to write.

Having a learner correct his own spelling errors has been shown to be the single most important factor in spelling achievement.

A student should list and study misspelled words prior to retesting. Keeping records of progress is an important learning tool.

Spelling problems are individual. Students should be encouraged to continue test-study-retest until the difficult-to-spell words have been learned.

*Adapted from Educator's Guide to Spelling Research and Practice, by Bradley M. Loomer, Iowa State Dept. of Public Instruction and the Spelling Project of U. of Iowa, 1978.

Hints for the Effective Teaching of Spelling

Students should be encouraged to try a specific method of learning how to spell words, such as the following:

1. Look at the word.
2. Close your eyes and say the word.
3. Spell the word.
4. Open your eyes and check the spelling.
5. Look at the word and say it again.
6. Cover the word and write it.
7. Check the spelling.
8. Repeat the cycle until the word is learned.

The spelling words in this program are classified in terms of those spelling concepts or generalizations which have wide application and few exceptions. Other categories are functional words and those often used in writing.

Approximately 60 to 75 minutes per week should be spent on spelling.

The number of lessons and of words per grade level are shown in Table 1. The heading number of programs in Table 1 refers to the number of 16K programs required to contain the lessons.

Lists of concepts for each lesson at each grade level are presented on the pages following Table 1.

About the Authors

The ATARI Learning Systems Spelling in Context programs were developed by Max E. Jerman and Louise Marhert of Bertamax Inc.

Max E. Jerman earned his Ph.D. in Mathematics Education at Stanford University. He has taught at elementary, junior high, and high school levels in addition to courses in mathematics education, problem solving, statistics, and research at the university level. He has authored and co-authored elementary text books, supporting materials, computer-assisted instructional programs in mathematics for RCA, Hewlett Packard and Computer Curriculum Corporation, and a textbook in elementary mathematics methods. His "current" to "recent" academic responsibilities include being Director of both the School of Education and of the Bureau of Research and Service at Seattle Pacific University. He is now president of Bertamax Inc., a courseware firm which produces educational courseware for micro computers.

About the Authors

Louise Markert is a graduate of the University of Washington with B.S. degrees in English and in Education and graduate studies there and at Columbia University. Her classroom experience includes elementary, secondary, graduate school, and demonstration school. She is currently teaching at the university level. She has served as English Specialist for a large urban school district. She has done extensive in-service classes and workshops for teachers in Language Arts, including spelling. Development, research, and implementation of district-wide spelling programs and the introduction of the National Spelling Bee were part of this emphasis. She has co-authored and authored textual and supporting materials in Language Arts, Literature, and Poetry. Other publications include professional journals and curriculum materials. She has acted as consultant and speaker in the area of spelling for schools, publications, and professional organizations.

Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of the product documentation in this manual.
